

Make a piece of Art inspired by Andy Goldsworthy, get outside and rearrange nature into a striking piece of temporary Art.

Inspiration; Andy Goldsworthy.

Andy Goldsworthy is a British sculptor, photographer and environmentalist who is famous for his work celebrating pattern, shape, and texture in the natural environment.

Work outside in the natural environment to make an art piece that takes inspiration from his work and ideas. Remember:

- Andy Goldsworthy uses only what he finds in the natural environment.
- He organises what he finds into man-made shapes that stand out.
- He is very inventive.
- Once the work is complete it is left to merge back into the natural environment.

You could take a photograph to record your finished artwork. If you are not able to get outside, then use the same idea using objects from around your house. See how inventive you can be!
